

LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION

I am with immense pleasure introduce my fellow associate Mr. Joshua Prakash, who is applying for his Masters at your acclaimed university through this letter of recommendation. Being coined together in our work for the past 8 months it became an easy job for me to deeply understand and to assess his betterment for his skills.

He came to my project after a brief 3 months of initial learning program before that he was selected to our company through campus and he went through another series of interviews by myself and few other associates to land a position in our team. During the initial period, I didn't have too many chances to interact with him and so I was not aware of him till an incident happened. That incident created a bond between us. The incident was that we were searching for a potential solution in a completely new domain that would fit our business need, one of our colleagues has suggested a solution and we decided to go with her solution. He made some research and worked hard to grab the core concept in that domain and came up with an astounding solution which was better than the previously proposed solution in a very short span of time. The commitment of him to learn new technology made be amuse and at the same time boldness that he possess to voice out his solution among the other experienced superiors was quiet astonishing to watch. We were marveled at his understanding of the business needs in addition to the technical needs. This was the point of time when I got to know about his true research potential.

After that incident, he became more prominent player and took more responsibility on his shoulder in our team. His contribution to my team include innovative ideas, efficient work and word around technical solutions. Apart from technical skills, he is an excellent athlete. We both even took part in Fit4Life campaign conducted in our company where for each steps we cover by foot certain amount will be given to the poor and needy. We also play corporate foot ball tournaments where he guided our team to victories with his excellent leadership qualities. Overall his presence can influence everyone in the positive way.

I strongly believe that with his aptitude for learning and his eagerness to leave a mark in whatever he is unto makes him better competitor to contribute more to the chosen field and industry. He is a good fit for our organization and would be to your acclaimed university. Hence with no hesitation in my mind I strongly recommend his application to your esteemed university, which would help him in improving the knowledge and eventually in realizing his dreams.
